

You awake on a in translucent container, cables snaking from the end nearest your head. You are alone and your surroundings are deathly quiet. You get unsteadily to your feet. You are wearing cotton shorts & a sleeveless vest. Beside the container is a grey jump suit & a pair of utilitarian black boots, both of which look to be your correct size. The walls on three sides of the room are bare metal, with a door taking up most of the fourth side,

Do you...

...put on the uniform?

...open the door?

As you step barefoot through the doorway you step on something oily, lose your footing. You fall backwards, banging your head hard against the door frame, losing consciousness.

Start over again.

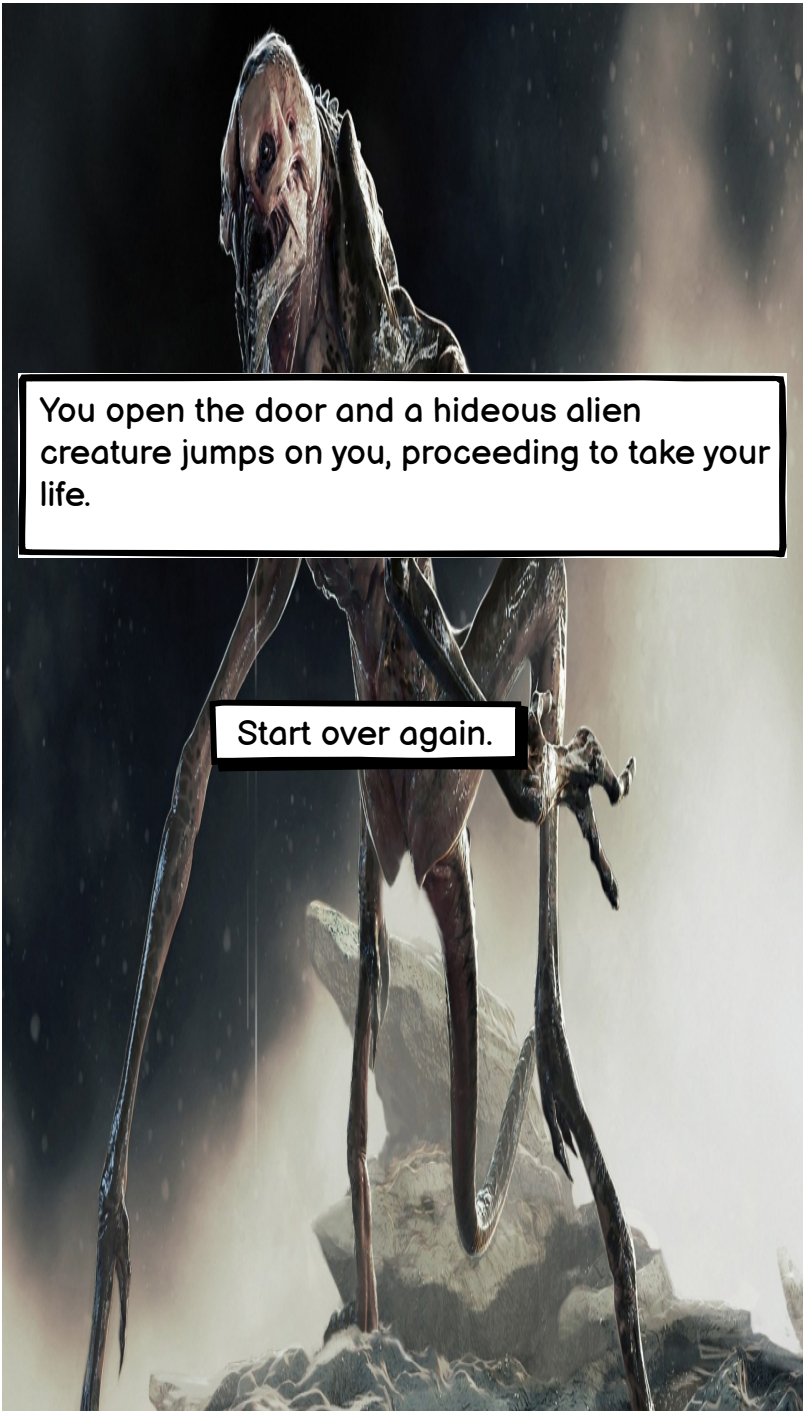

The door opens onto a long corridor. As you step through you notice some oily liquid on the floor, but your boots manage to keep their grip. At the end of the corridor there are two doors, one leading left. The other leading right.

Do you...

...take the door to the left?

...take the door to the right?

You open the door and a hideous alien creature jumps on you, proceeding to take your life.

Start over again.

You step through the door into what appears to be a crew galley. There's a rifle behind a glass case on the wall to your right.

Suddenly you hear a noise.

What do you do?

Take the rifle and start blasting?

Wait to see what happens?

12:18

You open fire. When you turn on the lights you realize you've slaughtered your entire crew & you see decorations on the wall saying Happy Birthday!

Start over again.

You wait. Nothing happens. You turn on the light & your crew jump out from behind the tables shouting Happy Birthday.

THE END
